J. WILLIAM HORSEY 1892-1968, MEMBER OF BOARD OF GOVERNORS 1961-1968, CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD 1964-1968

Mr. Horsey at the Bible College

"THERE IS A PRINCE AND A GREAT MAN FALLEN THIS DAY . . ."

These words were spoken by a grieving King David on hearing the news of the death of Abner, who had been the captain of Saul's host.

Ontario Bible College felt itself caught up in the same mood, as word of the death of the Chairman of the Board, Mr. J. William Horsey, came from Florida on December 20, 1968. The sense of loss of leadership, of a champion of the Word of God, made the words of David poignantly true for us and for many others who laboured in the Kingdom of God with this "prince and great man".

Mr. Horsey was a prince of industry. Few men in Canadian financial or industrial life have risen to such prominence, or from such humble beginnings. Assisting in his father's grocery store as a youth, his boundless energy found outlets in dreams and plans of expansion in the world of commerce. Through the years he laboured, until dozens of corporations felt the skill of his hand and the depth of his business acumen.

To list all his business responsibilities would be impossible. At the time of his death, he was Chairman of the Board of Wilgran Corporation Ltd. and G. Tamblin Limited; Chairman of the Executive Committee of Crush International Limited; and served as a Director of many outstanding firms in both Canada and the United States.

Having started working in a grocery store as a boy, his interests in this phase of business developed over the years. Standard Brands, Chase and Sanborn, Dominion Stores, Salada Foods — these and many more felt his dynamic leadership.

Another side appeared as he lent those same skills in assisting in the growth and development of educational institutions (University of Western Ontario and York University), Hospitals (Vice-President and Governor of Toronto Western Hospital), and other organizations. Two universities expressed their appreciation for Mr. Horsey by conferring honorary degrees upon him.

These pictures, from left to right, show Mr. Horsey as he shared in his great love: the Bible College where men and women could be trained to carry the Word of God into all the world.

(1) Addressing the students as he speaks of the new O.B.C. symbol and its significance.

(2) In the Campaign Office as he led in the raising of $400,000 urging people to "Give that the work may live."

(3) With President S. L. Boehmer, breaking ground for the new J. William Horsey Library.

(4) Speaking at the Graduation Service at Varsity Arena.

(5) With Dr. Stephen Olford (left) of Calvary Baptist Church, New York, and Mr. Thomas G. McCormack, President of Dominion stores and member of O.B.C. Board of Governors.

(6) With Mrs. Horsey at the dedication of the Library that bears his name.

But it was in his spiritual endeavours that his true stature was seen, and "his works do follow him". He served actively with many Christian organizations, and gave wise and spiritual counsel to many others.

Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship, Yonge Street Mission, Toronto Bible College, Upper Canada Bible Society, and a host of others knew his touch. He led in the merger of TBC and LCBM, and saw Ontario Bible College well established before the Lord took him Home.

This admixture of business, social, academic and spiritual find their source in an experience that made him a "prince" indeed: the day when, as a youth, he came to a personal knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ as his Saviour.

In his latter years, Mr. Horsey gave himself wholeheartedly and intensely to the leadership, growth and fruitfulness of the Bible College. His wisdom and spiritual insight were made available to the President, Dr. Boehmer, and through him to the school. His generosity provided a Library building, although he humbly preferred that his name not appear on the exterior. His plans and service were ever forward looking, implemented by a devotion and dependence upon the Lord that few such men manifest. And so we at Ontario Bible College, not eulogizing the man, but thanking God for him, would say to you and all who love and serve the Lord Jesus Christ: "There is a prince and a great man fallen this day."

It was said of Sir Christopher Wren that he refused earthly honours after his feat as architect of the magnificent 18th century St. Paul's Cathedral in London. After his death, posterity would not be denied the right to honour such a man, and a simple plaque was placed over the north doorway of St. Paul's, the door through which monarchs go for worship or ceremony of state. And on it are the words: "Si monumentum requiri, circumspice. (If you seek his monument, look about you.)"

If you seek a monument to Mr. Horsey, come to the Ontario Bible College campus and look around. And then pray with us: "Oh God, give us men of like precious faith, of like deep concern, of like devotion, and of like generosity, that Thy work may live!"

This latter phrase, "Give that the work may live," was Mr. Horsey's own caption for the financial campaign that God so evidently owned and blessed. But it was also his commitment, his philosophy. An interview with Devon Smith of the Toronto Telegram some two years ago carried this paragraph:

"A few months ago he put his philosophy into its background in an address to the Toronto Board of Trade Club. Here is how he summed up at the end of that speech: 'True leadership calls for personal sacrifice, courage and faith.'

"The greatest leadership we have known or shall ever know is triumphantly expressed in Christ our Lord.

"He said: 'Whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant'."

And now that our brother is gone, we acknowledge that "a prince and a great man is fallen," because he was a servant of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Let us thank God for J. William Horsey

"For the Healing of the Nations"

When President Nixon was inaugurated as the 37th President of the United States, he assumed the most burdensome, awesome task of secular authority in the world.

"The haunting fear of what might come upon the world is the obsession and nightmare of millions of people," so said the Manchester Guardian. And as the mantle of authority is thrown over his shoulders, President Nixon must surely be at the head of that list of concerned and responsible people.

TIME magazine sought to lay out the immediate task of the President (Jan. 24, 1969 issue) under the title "Healing a Nation," and then discussed the many, many areas of distress, tension, crisis and danger that confront him. They are formidable and familiar to any reader of local and world news, and need not be repeated here.

No less awesome and formidable is the task that confronts the Christian, for under divine fiat the world and the nations of the world are his responsibility.

The nations are restless. Assassinations, revolutions, strikes, wars: these are the daily news items. With increasing affluence for some, there are millions who die of starvation. Even with the realization that war can only bring annihilation, peace seems more elusive than ever. Sin is condoned, licentiousness is common, decency is rare, authority is scorned, and nations are gradually accelerating towards catastrophe.

On the other hand, Christian churches are spending more and more money on ornate buildings, developing elaborate programs, and becoming less and less concerned with the world missionary task. Modern cults and non-Christian religions are experiencing a resurgence through their own "missionary" effort and personal sacrifice, and are seeing a worldwide acceptance that is unprecedented. The fourteen million Buddhist Soka Gakkai membership in Japan has spread to the U.S. and from 30,000 members there in 1965 it has grown to 170,000. Other false groups see a comparable increase.

Young people are turning away from "the establishment," only to mire themselves in a "nothing" existence that has neither meaning nor purpose. They are "seeking" but not "finding" because the church has lost, to a large degree, its missionary motivation. The local community is a mission field; so is the province or state, the country, the continent, the world. We have a message for "the healing of the nations." It does not seem to have us.

The Church has ever been called to a global missionary task, to meet the nations of the world in their need and distress, with the message of the Gospel. Somehow, this vision has become dimmed, this task is being shirked, this call is largely unheeded.

Why? Are there no longer men and women of devotion and passion who will hear the Lord say: "Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?" Is there no longer obedience to the Bible's clear and peremptory commands "go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel"?

We have just completed our College Missionary Conference. The world trooped in to O.B.C. and for four days an appeal for workers to labour for the souls of men, was made. But this is not the task of Ontario Bible College alone. It is the task of the church and of every member of the church. The call is for complete and absolute commitment to Christ and to His work.

President Nixon realizes he cannot do his job alone. In his inaugural address, he called to the American people to participate with him, in these words:

"I do not offer a life of uninspiring ease. I do not call for a life of grim sacrifice. I ask you to join in a high adventure — one as rich as humanity itself, and exciting as the times we live in."

In a higher vein, this is the call, the claim, yea the command of Jesus Christ, Who, Himself is "the healing of the nations." Let us hear His words; let us respond to His call. Let us obey His commands. We must do no less. The world waits. (D.C.P.)

IS IT... MISSIONS IMPOSSIBLE?

It is the age of the Apollo in moon orbit; of Telstar with instantaneous worldwide communication by radio and television; of the ubiquitous transistor radio that hangs from the horns of the eastern Brahma bull, the wall of an African mud hut or the shoulder of a western teenager. It is a day of mass communication through media that improve almost daily.

Literature is available to a vast majority of the world's people, but more than half of them cannot read. And for those who can, what will they read? Is there sufficient Christian literature?

Television or radio could reach 97% of the world's population tomorrow, but what would they hear or see? Is the Gospel beamed into their areas?

Jet travel can place a man almost anywhere in the world in 48 hours. But the travellers are mostly tourists, or business or government personnel.

In this day of world population explosion, more than 50 million souls a year are added to the nearly 4 billion now living. This presents to the Christian a "field white already to harvest." How to harness all the technology of today for the task of reaching the world's billions with the gospel; how to challenge today's youth to be the manpower for the task . . . this was the air of the 1969 Missionary Conference of Ontario Bible College.

We have a mission that at the moment almost seems impossible to accomplish, because of the lack of concern and consecration on the part of the Church.

Listen to theme speaker Dr. George Peters: "We have the means, the money and the methods to reach the world with the Gospel in the next five years." With the men, the dedication and concern of the Church, and a concerted effort to fulfil the great commission, it could be done at least in this generation. Will we see it done? Given the men it can be, indeed, it must be.

And this is what our Conference produced: more than a score of men and women who publicly dedicated their lives for such a task; a deeper concern for the world of our generation on the part of others; a deeper insight and knowledge into the problem of world missions on the part of all.

And what a joy it was to have our missionary family here to share these days with us. The Holy Spirit used messages (16), panels (21), and counselling (uncounted!), and films (3), to speak to hearts and lives.

It was a great conference, that should do much to meet the great demands of this amazing day in which we live. May all who shared in it, and you who read this Recorder take to heart, the theme:

A CHRISTIAN GHETTO, OR THE WORLD?

It must remain very questionable whether a stay-at-home church, whether a non-missionary-minded church, a church that is withdrawn from the world into its own little Christian ghetto, disobedient to the Great Commission and indifferent to the needs of the world, is in any position to claim or inherit the promise of Christ's presence. But to those who go — go into the world as Christ came into the world — to those who live in the world as Christ was in the world, to those who sacrifice their ease and comfort and independence and safety, and hazard their lives in the search of disciples — to them comes the promise of the presence of the living Christ."

Rev. John R. W. Stott, Rector of
All Souls Church, London, England
at the Berlin Congress

"Europe is one of the great Mission fields," says Rev. W. Elwyn Davies to Larry Clements.

Student planning and cooperation helped make the Conference a success. Here Pat Burn offers information and help to students and visitors.

Reflecting the swift changes of our technological world, missions are also changing.

The old message of the Cross remains the same, but evangelical missions are seeking to be more effective in their use of modern methods.

* There are wider opportunities in the use of radio on every continent. This is one area in which Christians exceed the communists in both the quantity and quality of their outreach, according to theme speaker, Dr. George Peters.

* T.V. is beginning to be used in some cities although HCJB may be the only mission operated channel.

* Medical work continues to expand in countries even though governments are beginning to share more in the costs.

* Christian Education workers are in greater demand as thousands of young Christians in new churches need instruction in the Christian faith.

* More attractive literature including popular magazines like Africa Challenge are having an impact in their respective regions.

* The potential in the audio-visual film is almost entirely untapped.

* The general missionary is still vital to the whole evangelistic enterprise, but working more and more as a colleague of the national Christians.

ASIAN CHRISTIANS FACE THE CHALLENGE

Dr. George Peters of Dallas Theological Seminary, interviewed for the Evangelical Recorder, emphasized some of the new trends in the present generation.

"The recent Congress on Evangelism in Singapore was highly significant", he said, "because it brought the Asian leaders together in fellowship, face to face. They were challenged to realize that spreading the Gospel especially in Asia is increasingly their responsibility. They will no doubt do some things in a different way, and western Christians will need to show patience and love in understanding these new developments."

Dr. Peters was the theme speaker at the College foreign missions conference, speaking on "Above us the Cross — Around us the World". This noted missions authority will be giving his attention in the future to the further study of saturation evangelism. He has been deeply involved in Evangelism in Depth in Latin America and will shortly be going to Ethiopia and

by Charles A. Tipp

East Africa to study the revivals there. He is convinced that in the providence of God, Christians now have the resources, including mass media, to reach the whole world with the Gospel. It is a question of our commitment.

Referring to the opportunities of teaching in universities overseas Dr. Peters said: "There are many opportunities for reaching the student generation for Christ. You may be able to go out on a contractual basis with the university directly, but you should go out in fellowship with some mission enterprise in the area. For such opportunities you need to be academically competent and spiritually committed."

"What bothers North American youth is not money nor lack of opportunities, but the influence of existential philosophy. This philosophy has ignored the existence of God and left no meaning or purpose in life. Science has left youth in a closed-in universe with supernaturalism gone. Students are frustrated and rebel against tensions that they don't understand and face the fact of death without any hope"

One mission representative who was also at the Singapore Conference, Russell Self of the Canadian Presbyterian Board, said that the Asians "have a new awareness of the missionary task. They have established a clearing house in Singapore for the sending of international teams from Asian countries to other lands in the area."

Asked what is the major challenge in Asia today, Mr. Self said "two-thirds of the world's population live in Asia but only 1% of these are Christians. With 50% of the population under twenty years of age the dominant dynamic is youth. In some countries they are already the leaders. But student unrest and insecurity is a creative challenge for missions."

75 MILLION SCRIPTURES FOR ASIA
In the future Mr. Self will be serving in Hong Kong as the regional Circulation Consultant for the United Bible Societies. I asked him: "How many copies of the Scripture do you hope to see distributed in the next few years?" He replied: "There are twenty-five million pieces of Scripture being distributed annually at the present time and we are planning for seventy-five million pieces by 1975. Six million pieces are being printed by the Japan Bible Society for the thirty million people expected at Expo '70 in Osaka." Mr. and Mrs. Self remember with gratitude the strong missionary emphasis of Dr. John McNicol in Toronto Bible College on "holding forth the word of life".

MORE OPPORTUNITIES IN RADIO AND EDUCATION

In East Africa, Rev. Peter Stam of the Africa Inland Mission reported many opportunities for secondary school teachers. "The door of opportunity" he said, "is not only open but off its hinges. Kenya is a country which has perhaps more religious broadcasting than most. The Africa Inland Mission is responsible for 150 programs each month for free use on the radio network."

"This is a land where many of the leaders in government and business have been educated in mission schools. The Vice-President of Kenya, Daniel Moi, is one of several evangelical Christians in the government."

Speaking of the fantastic developments today, Dr. George Hilgeman of the Evangelical Union of South America said that 85% of all scientists are living today. He estimated that there have been eight billion people from the time of Adam until now. "Therefore", he said, "nearly 40% of all mankind are living today. If each Christian would win just one other person annually it would only take 32 years to convert the world!"

"There are revolutions in missions as well as among students", he said. "The use of evangelism-in-depth has nearly doubled the number of believers in some areas."

Several missionaries reported on countries where there were legal restrictions against the conversion of people to the Christian faith.

Mel Cuthbert of Association of Baptists for World Evangelism in Sao Paulo, Brazil, stressed the growing need for work in the great metropolitan centres of the world.

"Culture Shock", according to Virgil Newbrander of Far Eastern Gospel Crusade, "is really self discovery — when you are confronted with your own impatience, rudeness and selfishness and have to face yourself." He said that in the Orient the greatest response to the Gospel was among teenagers or those between twenty and forty years of age who had moved from rural areas to the new urban areas.

Among the primitive people of New Guinea, Ray Holley of Unevangelized Fields Mission described the slow process of teaching the stone age people the basic doctrines of the Gospel. "It took over eighteen months to instruct them concerning God and creation, sin, and Christ as Redeemer. The teaching they understood most readily concerned the Holy Spirit because they are so sensitive to the spirit world already. The transformation in the lives of these people is truly an amazing work of grace."

Students Set Missions Project Goal

The students set a goal of $2000. for their special missions project this year. Before the end of the Conference, more than half of that amount had been realized.

The two phases of the project are:

1. A duplicator for the Manyang Bible School in the Philippines, staffed by Overseas Missionary Fellowship.
2. A dormitory for girls in the Fairview Bible College, Jamaica, run by the Baptist Mid Missions.

This is caring by sharing while preparing! It is Missions in action now, not later.

THE CHALLENGE OF T.V. AND FILMS

"In the next 15 years", Mr. Holley said, "T.V. could very well be the greatest instrument in the hand of God to reach the upper and elite classes of society in Latin America who are not being currently reached by conventional methods."

"The present and future need of good 16 mm gospel orientated films for release on T.V. and for other evangelistic purposes is very great in many areas of the world."

"While on a film production in South Africa in January I was much impressed with the effective use that missionaries and nationals were making of films in their ministry to the 380,000 mine workers in that country. Films are shown five nights a week with an average attendance of over 700."

The oldest Christian radio station, HCJB, broadcast special greetings to the O.B.C. Missionary Conference at 10 p.m. on Wednesday night. David Findlay spoke of the large correspondence coming to the mission from listeners in many countries. "We have received letters from Russian listeners in 69 different countries, including many from Russia."

Speaking from Ephesians 3, Dr. Peters concluded his conference ministry with the challenge, "A Christian who is not involved in evangelism and missions is not living according to God's purpose for this age."

At the turn of the 19th century, there was a worldwide movement of spiritual revival and quickening that centred particularly in the Colleges and Universities. Dr. J. Edwin Orr in his book, "Light of the Nations" has this thrilling comment:

"The last decade before the turn of the 19th century began in discouragement. Bishop Madison in the diocese of Virginia shared the conviction of Chief Justice Marshall, a devout layman, that the church was too far gone ever to be revived, while Bishop Provoost of New York felt that the situation was hopeless, and simply ceased functioning. General Assembly in the Presbyterian Church officially deplored the dereliction of religious principles, the prevailing impiety and the corruption of public morals. Baptists admitted a very wintry season in which the love of many had grown cold, while members were being lost to the Methodists alone at the rate of four thousand a year. . . .

"At that time, the colleges in the longest settled parts of the country were hotbeds of infidelity and immorality. Interest in things spiritual had ebbed away. When the tide turned, it did so imperceptibly at first in scarcely noticeable gatherings of just a handful of students for prayer. . . .

"When the brilliant Timothy Dwight, grandson of Jonathan Edwards, came to the presidency of Yale College in 1795, he invited his students to attack freely the truth of the Scriptures, and he answered them in a series of pungent sermons in chapel. Among his topics were 'The Nature and Danger of Infidel Philosophy,' and 'Is the Bible the Word of God?' Then he proceeded to grapple with the problem of materialism and deism in his direct exposition of theology.

"This provoked such interest in religion that in 1802, one-third of the total student body made public profession of conversion in a revival that moved the halls of ivy. In succeeding years, the student revivals at Yale were repeated.

"On a summer afternoon in 1806, five students of Williams College were driven from a grove of maples where they were accustomed to meet for prayer. They sheltered from the thunderstorm under a haystack, and there prayed about a plan to reach the unevangelized heathen for Christ.

"The thunderstorm was of short duration, and the sun broke through the clouds as the light of a clear purpose broke upon their souls. Samuel J. Mills gave the decisive word:

"'We can do it, if we will!'

"Out of the Haystack Compact grew the whole modern American missionary movement. Out of the college awakenings came other blessings."

This was the result of the few, concerned, praying students! All that we know today of evangelical organizations came into being in this "gust of divine power". The Student Volunteer Movement that sent hundreds of University students to the mission fields of the world was one of the outstanding missionary responses. Add to this the great movements for God that we know today: The Bible Institute and Bible College movement, (Moody, Nyack, and Toronto were the first three); Rescue Missions; Christian Orphanages; the Bible Societies; Salvation Army; Mission Societies: the China Inland Mission (now Overseas Missionary Fellowship), Ceylon and India General Mission (now International Christian Fellowship), The Leprosy Mission, Zenana Bible and Medical Fellowship (now Bible and Medical Missionary Fellowship), South Africa General Mission (now Africa Evangelical Fellowship), Sudan United Mission, Sudan Interior Mission, Africa Inland Mission, Regions Beyond Missionary Union, Christian and Missionary Alliance, Evangelical Union of South America, Bolivian Indian Mission (now Andes Evangelical Mission), Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship — the list grows longer and longer.

Evangelism, through men like A. B. Simpson, Moody and Sankey, Crossley and Hunter, Sunday and Rodeheaver, saw thousands swept into the Kingdom of God. Missionary leaders such as Carey, Speer, Mott, Hudson Taylor, Bingham, Brainerd, Andrew Murray — again the list of honored men stretches out. What great days, great adventures for God they were!

The late Christian historian, Kenneth Latourette called that period "The Great Century," not because of technological or scientific advancement, but because of the great spiritual movement that saved souls, stabilized nations, gripped men in high places (Lincoln and Gladstone among them) and saw the Church planted in many lands.

It all began because a few men, concerned and burdened prayed and said "We can do it if we will!" So can we, in 1969!

3 CHRISTMAS MUSICALES ATTRACT OVER 4000

With interest in Ontario Bible College doubled through the merger, the students were called on to share their testimony in three splendid Christmas programs to meet growing interest in London, Hamilton and Toronto.

"They're using their souls for a song-book, aren't they?" was one expression used by a child of students' singing. And perhaps that comes closest to "making melody in their hearts unto the Lord."

Under the direction of Mr. Warren Adams, narration by Mr. W. Crump and accompanied by Mrs. Betty Percy and Miss Barbara Kerr, the "CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL OF LIGHTS" was a joy to all who heard and saw, for it was a visual, as well as an audible, presentation of the wonder and the glory of the Christmas story.

★ With 340 students, congestion is the word at O.B.C. The Campus is a constant ebb and flow of life. One of these days, the tide will overflow. But it's nice to see so many Christian young people, purposeful, dedicated and concerned about service for Christ.

★ New things are constantly making the scene. A student paper, "Marketplace", is a journalistic venture for budding writers and reporters.

★ Crests, sweaters, jackets and ribboned buttons, all bearing our new symbol are adding "school spirit," a rare commodity among College students today.

★ Chapel periods have been rich spiritual experiences as the Lord has sent men of the Word to us:

"They Used Helps . . ."

Paul's journey to Rome was hazardous; the storm continued unabated, and "helps" were used on the ship.

There are many helps that aid the good ship O.B.C., and not the least is the extra financial help given to students. Scholarships, bursaries and awards are all part of our program of helping, encouraging and rewarding.

Many of the scholarships, awards and bursaries are well known. Now some new ones have been added, three from Alumni, the other from a Corporation member. We thank God and thank them for their help.

- * CLASS OF '40 BURSARY ($250.00) to be given to an "M.K." — the son or daughter of a missionary.
  - * ALBERT BARROW BURSARY, from a grad of '21, to be given to a student entering his final year. Value $150.00.
  - * TROUTEBROOKE INVESTMENTS LTD. BURSARY, through a Corporation member at a value of $250.00.
  - * EX-RABBI HENRY BREGMAN MEMORIAL AWARD — in honor of an alumnus of 1909, and presented by his son, Fred Bregman T'30. The award is to be presented to the student with the highest average in first year Hebrew.
- So these are some "helps" that will assist and encourage students. Help!
